

BARSTOW MINERAL COLLECTION DETAILED INFORMATION

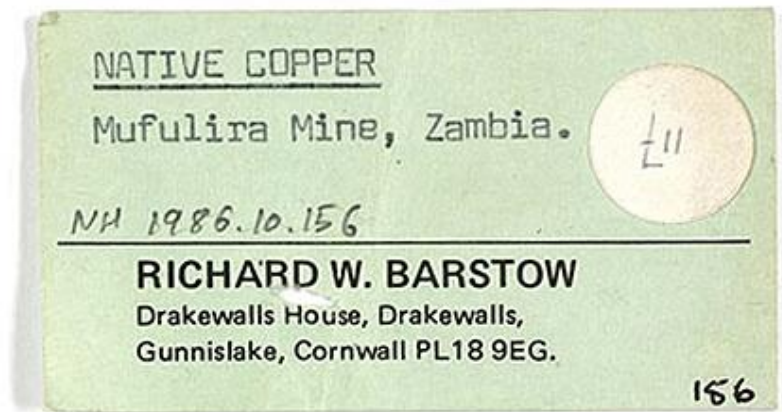

Natural history collection

There are different types of labels associated with the collection.

Green Barstow labels

Minerals that were sold, or intended for sale, have green Barstow labels.

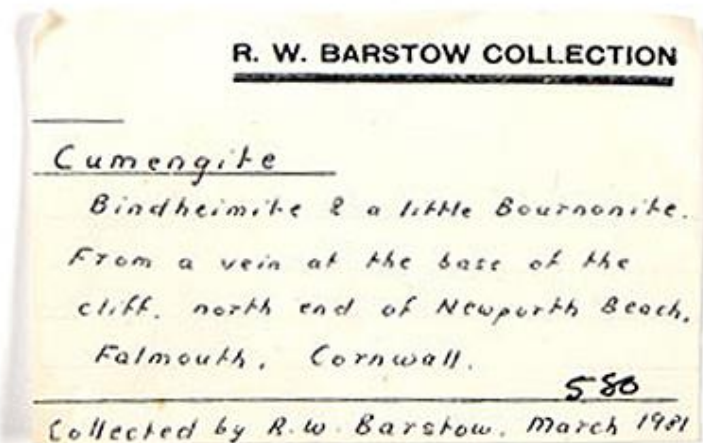

However Barstow donated specimens to both Plymouth and Truro museums and many of these donated specimens have green labels. They represent the labels used in his business.

White Barstow labels

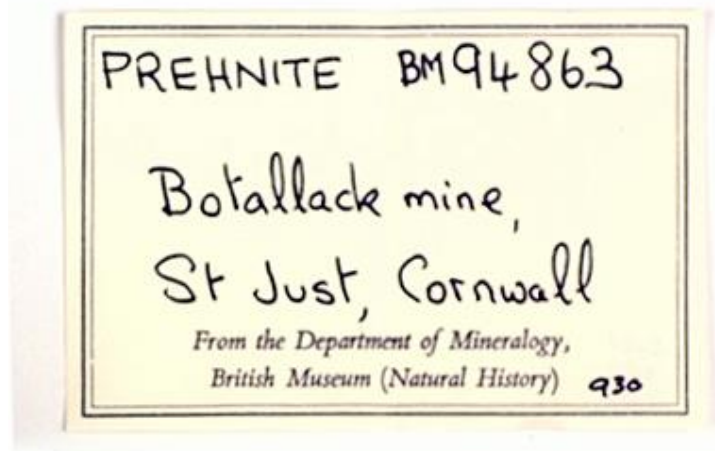

Minerals that Barstow retained for his personal collection have white Barstow labels.

These often have information about provenance written along the bottom; either field collector or previous owner.

Other associated labels and papers

Minerals with more history often have older collectors labels, and others have hand-written notes by Barstow outlining the provenance. Small scraps of paper are occasionally found with the specimens the museum acquired from his estate. These refer to the person Dick bought from or swapped with to acquire the mineral.

The Barstow Collection also contains specimens from Colonel Sir William Serjeant CB. and Sir John St Aubyn.

The museum holds the René Gallant Mineral Collection, many of whose specimens were purchased from Barstow and are included in the online catalogues.
